Caught In a 55-mile race which came with great audience upon Greater Boston today, a cool competitor, a 1934 Buick Wildcat, was being guided by the Meridian street drawbridge, Chelsea, and crashed into piling near the bridge.

At the same time, tenders at the bridge were having a hard struggle to keep the structure in place to prevent it from crashing into the Chimneys and signs were topped in the South and West ends in Cambridge and scores of motorists were stuck in traffic, accompanied by a driving rain.

The Collier Magazine, bound for the Boston Herald, was stuck in the tugs Nathaniel and Clara.

Dec. 1—Holy Cross won a battle of the mud here today to defeat its Boston College rival La Salle in a football game.

The game, played at the stadium before some 15,000 rural school spectators,

The Purple's lone touchdown came in the opening of the first half, when a pass from the backfield to the Wings 10-yard line was intercepted by Ninky Morris, brilliant Sam Houston State University back, who, following the bulk of the career of the Purple's backfield.

In just three plays Morris had made the game exciting for the spectators.

Boston College, shortly after Brennan's long punt had splattered on the field and in the mud on the line, was in the position to score. Crusader tried to do it.

Vin Dougherty, standing deep in the backfield, was in the act of covering, dropped to one knee for an automatic safety.

Franklin Field, Philadelphia,
Dec. 1—Navy outfought Army

Led by the sensational Fred (Buz) Borries, All-America halfback, and Bill Clark, fullback punter, the midshipmen got the jump early in the game, capitalized their first scoring opportunity and then defended their three-point margin with a magnificent exhibition of defensive football on a gridiron that was turned into a quagmire by a torrential rain shortly before the game started.

The outcome ended a five-game winning streak for the Cadets over their service rivals. West Point was unable to make any headway in the mud and never was inside Nevada's 35-yard line.

Army's ace back, Jack Buckler, bogged down and was completely overshadowed by Borries, the ground-gaining star of the game, as well as by Clark, whose punting

WIDOWS' GLEAS SOAR BASKET FUND GIFTS

"Ever since I lost my husband, I have had nothing but hardships; hardly enough to eat and little or no fire. So please do what you can to make my little ones happy on that one day of the year that all children look forward to."

This is part of a letter from a Hyde Park mother who has six children and who is a widow. Her letter is filed as Case No. 11, but that does not mean that the letters received are this few. The letters used are picked at random by the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund editor and there are hundreds of others.

Any of these letters you Good-fellows may have, to take care of yourself, merely for the trouble of writing to the editor of the Basket Fund at 3 Winthrop square, Boston.

FOR HUNGRY CHILDREN

If every person who is able to take care of a Christmas basket appeal would do so, the work of the Basket Fund editor would be cut down to almost nothing.

If every person would realize that food and clothing mean more to fathers and mothers and children who are hungry and cold than toys and Christmas, there would be little suffering in Greater Boston. Many persons who realize what conditions are today have begun to send in their tangible contributions for those who are less fortunate in this world's goods.

LOYAL CONTRIBUTORS

Mrs. Virginia L. Paine of 27 Mount Vernon street, Beacon Hill, wife of Frank C. Paine, treasurer of the American yacht constant Yankee, sent her check for $25.

Mrs. C. A. Shaw of Dedham sent her annual contribution. Cardinal O'Connell has sent blue-ribbon there are many others in a similar classification.

Once these regulars have understood the joy which is theirs, the Christmas in the realization that they have done something to make happy those less fortunate, they will urge to do the same thing in the following years to come.

WIDOWS' APPEAL

Here, at any rate, is the letter of the Hyde Park widow who has six children.

"I am sending in my plea to you at this early date for a Christmas basket."

"I am a widow and it is very hard to support my six children with little or no fire. My children's whole soul is set on Christmas and it will be very cheap for their dinner. So I am asking if you would remember me on Christmas with a basket. The children were me so I hardly know what to do."

Ever since I lost my husband, I have had nothing but hardships. Hardly enough to eat and little or no fire. So please do what you can to make my little ones happy on that one day of the year all children look forward to."

NOT ENOUGH TO EAT

This is Case No. 11, and following is from another widow with six children.

"I am writing you this letter because I need your help very much. My husband died three years ago and left me with six children. My oldest son is 15, married secretly last month, which was a terrible shock to the house."

"I only get a few dollars from the welfare, but I need much more for expenses and the support of myself and my children. My youngest is five years old and now my oldest is 14. I have five children to support now. I have been working very hard for their happiness for Christmas because after I pay my income taxes I cannot give the children enough to eat."

"I will be looking forward towards Christmas with great anxiety and will be ever so thankful to find that you didn't forget me and my little girls and boys on Christmas Day."

IN SOUTH BOSTON

This woman lives in Dexter street, South Boston, and her letter has been filed as Case No. 10.

Any Goodfellow who wishes to take this case will be given it, or if it is desired that the Christmas Basket Fund editor take care of it, the editor will be delighted to receive the contribution.

These are only a few of the letters being received by the Christmas Basket Fund editor of the Boston Evening American. The time points toward Christmas.

Contributions are needed — and it is up to you Goodfellow!

Boy Killed, Four Hurt in South Shore Crashes

A 14-year-old boy was fatally injured, three children and a young man are dying, and three others were injured less seriously in a series of auto accidents on the South Shore.

Stockbridge road, Scituate, is the scene of a fractured skull and neck injuries.

THE INJURED: AMSEN, BARBARA, 12, his sister, is dying of a fractured skull, crushed chest, and deep gashes from flying glass.

AMSEN, MARGO, 15, another sister, is dying of a fractured skull and other injuries.

GALLOP, WILMER, 28, of 200 South Shore road, Scituate, is dying of internal injuries and a crushed chest.

DELANEY, BERNARD, 35, also of 200 South Shore road, is slightly hurt, having been shaken up and bruised.

WEIGHT, PRESTON, 15, of 60 Main street, Quincy, is dying of a fractured skull.

ANES, ANNA, 28, 477 Main street, Quincy, is severely hurt.

BOVANI, JOSEPHINE, 20, of 41 Denmore road, is also badly hurt.

STUCK BY TRAIN Cedric Amisen, the two sisters, Quinn and Delaney, received their injuries when they were struck by a railroad train at the grade crossing on First Parish road, Scituate. Their machine was carried up.

2 Held Suspects in Girl's Killing Detroit, Dec. 1 (INS)—A man and a woman suspected of being Mertie Ward Goodrich and his wife, Florence, wanted for the murder of 13-year-old Lillian Walker, are held by police of Detroit. Fred W. Brown, chief of detectives, announced today.

The couple gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. Percy Adams.

BLOOD GUILT TO TIES TO WIFE

WITH a record of 20 blood transfusions to date, Mrs. Mary McKay, all of New Hampshire avenue, South Scituate, was revealed in Massachusetts General Hospital today in a thrilling battle against anemia.

Mrs. McKay, wife of Louis McKay, was admitted to the hospital on September 7. Her 20th transfusion was administered today, the second within a short period given her by Thomas Quincy Green, Somerville, engineer for an Everett gas concern.

The 21st is expected to be made Monday by Arnold's brother, Paul, Police George Arnold of the Metropolitan police station at Brighton. The Arnolds are not related to the stricken woman.

Dr. George F. Bigelow said at the hospital today that the transfusions for Mrs. McKay have been so numerous that there is little doubt as to whether much of her own blood remains in her system.

SPEED ARREST THE MINDY

To prepare for Monday's inquest in Greenfield into the shelling of Dr. Elmer Roper of St. Hermon school at Northfield, state authorities called at length today to the names of witnesses.

The group, Captain John F. Stokes, Commissioner of Public Safety Paul G. Kirk and District Attorney Joseph T. Bartlett of Greenfield, predicted the arrest Monday of a suspect in the shooting, or, at least, the placing of the blame before the grand jury.

The suspect, they said, has been trapped several times during questioning. Concerning the arrest, however, District Attorney Bartlett said:

"There will be no arrest in the case until all of the evidence has been presented to the court. Then the matter is in the hands of Judge Hayes."

The state police said that most of the evidence to be presented in the inquest naturally builds up a case against the principal suspect. They further declare that, because they haven't yet been able to locate the 12 gauge shotgun which killed Dr. Roper on the night of September 16, they are continuing their intensive search up to the very moment that court convenes.

Student Quits in War on Huey Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 1—The "war" between students of the College of the South and the Huey Poinsett of Louisiana State University over "censorship" of the student newspaper, the student body, and the aspects of an "armistice."

Snell Promises G. O. P. Support Washington, Dec. 1 (US)—Cooperation by the Republican leadership with the Roosevelt administration on all "meritorious" cases and opposition to the administration, was assured by Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, minority House leader.

Snell's attitude toward party initiative in holding back recovery, Snell said.

Ann Harding to Seek Complete Custody Hollywood, Dec. 1—Gurney E. Newlin, attorney for Ann Harding, today admitted the screen star would seek modification of her divorce decree from Harry Bannister while in Nevada, where she has gone for her health.

"There is no question but what Mrs. Harding will ask the Nevada court to modify her divorce decree with respect to the custody of her daughter," Newlin testified.

Under terms of her Reno decree Mrs. Harding was to have custody of her 14-year-old daughter, Jane, until she is 18, and custody of Bannister was to have Jane for two months.

It was pointed out, however, that Bannister has never exercised his rights under the agreement. Jane, having remained with her mother constantly.

Snell, who has lived in New Hampshire, has lived in New Hampshire, has lived in New Hampshire.

Student Honored Orono, Me., Dec. 1 (AP)—Clayton O. Terman of Greenfield, Mass., today held the highest military honor of a 23 University of Maine student council member, that of being elected president of the university by O. T. C.

25 are 'Invited' to Race Board Hearing

The Boston Evening American today exclusively publishes the names of 25 persons "requested" as witnesses for next Tuesday's public hearing on Governor Ely's nominees for the new State Racing Commission.

All are prominent in official life racing circles or the sporting world. The names were obtained from authoritative sources, despite refusal of William L. Reed, executive secretary of the Governor's staff, and Attorney Conrad Crocker to place names of the 25 on the list for a public hearing.

The witnesses were requested to attend the hearing, which is to be held by the Governor's Council on Tuesday, but were not subpoenaed. There is no arrangement to have them give testimony under oath, but Crocker and, possibly, one or more confidants will demand it.

VIEWED AS "HONOR" What some viewed as a "joker" in the letter requesting their presence at the hearing, the 25 were given such evidence as you may want in opposing the nominees.

One of those called is General Charles H. Cole, named by the Governor as chairman of the new commission. Reports could not be confirmed that those in authority had failed to request the presence of a number of witnesses, including a telephone operator and a high level official, who were prospective witnesses.

CROCKER SILENT When informed that the executive secretary had failed to place names of witnesses officially, Attorney Crocker refused all comment, saying he had been asked no questions.

Following are the 25 persons called as witnesses:

COLE, GENERAL CHARLES H. of Boston Bruins hockey team, and of the Boston Bruins hockey team.

ADAMS, CHARLES F. owner of the Boston Bruins hockey team.

KEENE, CHARLES G. former president of Boston City Hall, and of the Boston Bruins hockey team.

TUCKERMAN, BAYARD, JR. member of the Eastern Horse Club.

KNOW, GEORGE V. manager of the Boston Garden.

WEBSTER, EDWIN S. of the Eastern Horse Club.

BIRD, CHARLES S., JR. of the Eastern Horse Club.

WARD, HENRY B. president, Boston Garden.

CHOPPED FROM WRECK UNHURT

Although it took two fire departments and a Boston Elevated wrench crew to rescue him from his crushed automobile, Harry J. Bourke, 36, of Harvard street, Waltham, stated at home today with only a slight injury.

Bourke's car was crushed between two steel cars at Broadway and Victoria streets, West Somerville. Firemen were called from Somerville and Arlington. The Elevated car dashed from Sullivan square. And a priest was summoned to administer last rites.

It took 40 minutes to get Bourke free. At Central Hospital in Somerville doctors were amazed to find only the ankle injury. After conferring with his own physician by telephone, Bourke rode home in a taxi.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN LEADERS PLAN NEW TESTS

Featured by frequent applause of about 100 commanders and captains of Junior Birdmen squadrons, a three-hour party was held in headquarters of the Boston wing at 100 Summer street, yesterday afternoon.

Assembling at 1 p. m., the officers listened to radio music, saw reels of motion pictures of an American Air Lines passenger plane on a trip from Chicago to New York, and then delved into a general discussion of model plane contests, features and activities for the ensuing two months.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM

It was one of the most enthusiastic rallies that have been held by Junior Birdmen since the organization was formed last spring. One of the features of the convention was the announcement of a new contest in which the eight units will compete for the wing banner. This banner will be awarded every three months on the basis of membership, activities and progress.

AIR MEET SOON

Keen interest was shown in details of the forthcoming New England indoor model plane tournament at Boston Garden on Saturday, December 29, and many of the officers took the opportunity to obtain copies of rule books and entry blanks. The winner of this meet will be sent, with all expenses paid, to Detroit to participate in a national contest for the William Randolph Hearst trophy and his choice of $200 in cash or a tour of the United States or a trip to Europe.

Greater participation of squadrons in the monthly contests for the Carl Drayfus trophy and cash prizes was also promised. These contests, with handicapped & O. O.'s to aid at South Army. The next will be conducted on Saturday, December 8.

'NEGROMANCY,' SCIENCE TOPIC

"Ancient and Modern Negromancy, Alms Mesmerism and Hypnotism Denounced" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 2.

The golden text is: "Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God." (III John 1:11).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand" (Ephesians 6:12, 13).

800 Will Attend Campaign Dinner

Monsignor Richard J. Haskin will speak as the representative of Cardinal O'Connell at the inaugural dinner of the emergency campaign at 1855 on December 6 at 7:15 p. m. at the Hotel Statler. More than 800 business, professional and social leaders of the city will attend.

8 Billion More to Kill Dole

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Mr. Hopkins wants to spend eight billion dollars to get rid of the dole. That should get rid of everything.

They're making government adding machines lower and wider.

While Mr. Hopkins plays it Mr. Moffat sings. It's a duet.

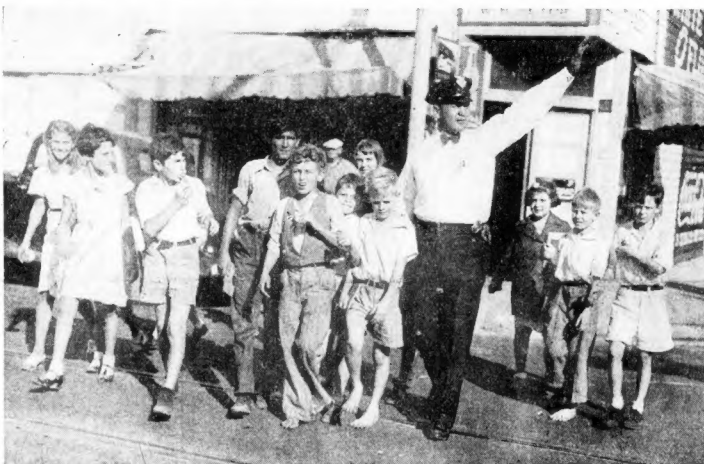

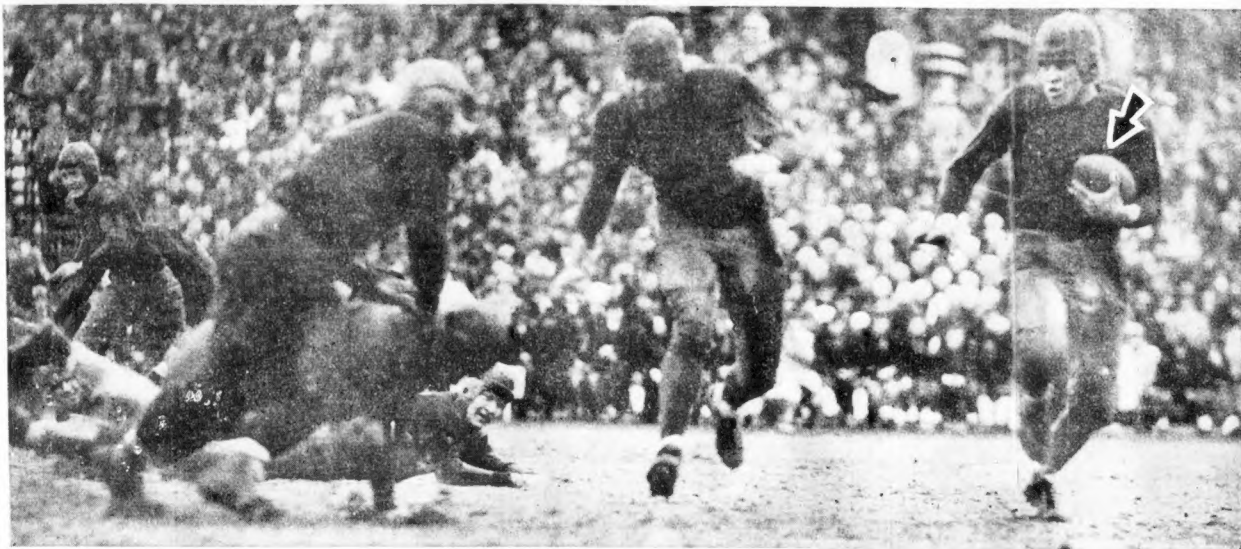

A lot of that eight billion will go to the farmers who have a clean record. They ain't refused anything yet.

Giving your money away is cheaper than lending it. You don't have to sue anybody.

And we will cast our bread on the waters until the Mississippi is running hot biscuits and breakfast rolls from the Twin Cities to the Gulf.

HAVE CONCERT RENDEZVOUS—Harvard's Sanders Theater will be the Saturday morning meeting place of these Cambridge young people who received, as Christmas gifts from their parents, subscriptions to a series of three concerts for

Juniors, Dec. 8, Jan. 12 and March 2. They are David Moore, Ann Dudley Perkins, Nancy Peabody, Oakes Ames and Polly and Jane Faulkner, all of Cambridge. (Photograph by Harold Orme.)

It looks as if Morris of Holy Cross was going to break loose. He's travelling fast, with at least one burly teammate safely alongside to furnish interference. But the Eagles' tacklers are swooping in. And in another few brief seconds they'll have the runner smacked down with a thud on the soggy field. No gain on this play for the Crusaders. EVER SINCE CENTRE COLLEGE, the Kentucky Colonel, came up to Cambridge in 1921 as unknown farm lads in denizens and flannel shirts, the habit of praying before a football game has grown steadily in school and college ranks.

Centre, I believe, was the first to huddle on the sidelines and mutter a set of invocations before rising to rush to their positions. The custom has grown, and today a host of schoolboy and university teams, regardless of creed, bow their necks while some player or coach delivers an oration before the game.

As a football official I have stood by many times waiting to shake the players to their position, but have never listened to their prayers through deference to their feelings. So I cannot say whether they pray for victory or merely for protection against harm.

The nearest I ever came to eavesdropping, was during a rainy schoolboy game some years ago, when a well known coach ordered his lads down on their knees in the dressing room and read out an entreaty after this fashion:

"O Lord," said he, raising his arms aloft, "make us conduct ourselves as men for the honor of the school. Instill sportsmanship in our hearts and clean, honest courage in our bodies... and O Lord, help us to knock these suckers for a loop."

THE FOOTBALL EXPERT LEADS a life of pampered luxury in the football stands at Boston College, where the ink-smudged slaves of the press sit in cozy, steamheated quarters, peering through glassed-in windows like gentlemen in a fashionable club. There are electric lights overhead for dull days, broad comfortable shelves for typewriting convenience and plenty of knee-room underneath.

It was not always thus in the business of covering college games and Old Forty-Niners of the press take delight in telling apprentices wiles of their sturdy suffering and loyal martyrdom when the frost of their breath comes on their chins and wintry gusts of wind whirled their half-finished stories over the field.

It is odd that the colleges refused to board up the writers and make them chummy and comfortable in the lush, rich times when gate receipts were lavish. Then concessions to the press were regarded as signs of over-emphasis and pretense that the schools actually yearned for publicity.

But when times grew dull, Harvard, Yale, Princeton and others of the select football class, agreed that they were, after all, engaged in the football business and that it would be no disgrace to make the press comfortable.

It is odd, too, and a commentary on nature's perversity, that since the press stands have been covered up and improvements installed, the seaboard has gentled down. Sleet, rain and blizzards don't fall on these games as they have on memorable occasions.

THE FATE OF FRANK CARDEO, mentioned by the late Knute Rockne as the greatest quarterback of his era at Notre Dame, illustrates how seldom super-players excel as coaches. Cardo had just resigned as coach at Missouri after losing 22 games in three years.

He was rated as Rockne's shrewdest football pupil, a sort of animated lexicon of gridiron marvels, a worker of gridiron hat-tricks and a wizard at carrying the ball. But he failed to impart his skill to his Missouri scholars.

Eddie Egan's anticipated fate at Harvard is a parallel. Eddie was among the miracle players of his student day, a will-o'-the-wisp in a broken field and a magician on either end of a forward pass. Yet he, too, could not pass along his knowledge to his Harvard pupils.

It is history that talented creators are seldom able teachers, because the source of genius is in the unfathomable nerve centers, not explainable even to its possessors.

The best in any art is the natural and unstudied quality that flows from the innermost being. True great players are usually unable to analyze their skill.

I once asked Jimmy Fox the secret of his hitting. He faltered, "I-I dunno, I just see the ball and hit it."

The best, most complete coaches in sport have been run-of-mill athletes who learned their games by rule of thumb, reasoning out the operations slowly, a step at a time. Lacking great physical gifts, they could never soar to the heights themselves. Yet they can teach others how to play the game.

Many successful college coaches have been among the few of their younger days. Frank Murray at Marquette, Arthur Sampson, formerly of Tufts, and Hugo Besick at Penn State, are examples. And Andy Kerr, the wizard of Colgate, played it very little.

The same premise, in part, is true of baseball. Ty Cobb, Tim Lincecum, Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Rogers Hornsby, have been failures or mediocre managers.

LAWRENCE HIGH SCHOOL HAS BEEN a football hotbed for Columbia in late years. Ralph Hewitt, Steve Grenda, Tony Mattioli, Joe Lincoln and Larry Cadogna have been among the few of Lawrence's best which have helped to make life pleasant for Coach Lou Little.

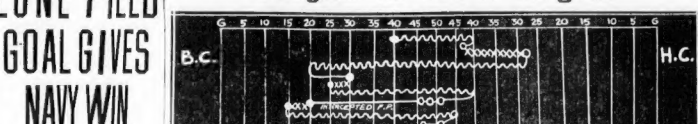

And now Henry Ouellette, the midge-jumping jack whose twitery running and stretchy muscles have made him the schoolboy prize of this region, is moving to Morningside Heights next year.

By actual count, 13 other colleges have sent ambassadors to promise him a life of princely luxury and wheedle him away. The little lad, shaped like a human bullet, and with a fog-horn voice and glib tongue, carries the prize of his college training, valued roughly at $7500 base cost, in the elastic quality of his hips and the sturdy churning of his calves.

KNOX COLLEGE, WHICH LOST its 27th straight game on the holiday, has reversed the ordinary college approach to fame and country-wide publicity. It is advertised as having the most "stationary backfield in the world."

By stretching out failure it has won more lineage in the press than it could ever have gained by besting the daylight out of its rivals, up-country neighbors.

STOCKS HIGHER

MODERATE TRADING

New York, Dec. 1.—The stock market moved moderately higher in light trading today.

Railroad shares showed a tendency to strengthen as the season progressed under the leadership of Atchafalpa and Union Pacific which gained at the close in a point.

New York Central cast off some of its sluggishness to advance fractionally imparting a better tone to the entire group.

UTILITIES GAIN

Utilities are consolidated rising tendencies as the season progresses. The North American American Water Works and Public Service moved up moderately.

Trading was comparatively dull throughout the session indicating that many traders are waiting for the week-end.

Most picture issues were among the most active features of the group by rising in a new high for the movement and about a point over yesterday's closing.

Steel was another active feature getting fractionally higher, while the preferred rose more than a point reflecting the comparatively favorable earnings report.

Strength in the grain market, including the farm interest, and International Harvester, Liquors were firm, while wheat and oil and speculators' market.

AUTO OUTPUT

With the advent of December, dealers observers count on holiday trading of goods to be expected to reach a new high.

Increased production of automobiles was expected to be a factor in the operation of some of the heavier lines.

Mounting bank deposits again drew attention to the fact that credit expansion had been had for potential credit expansion.

The gold and bond for a credit strategy continued to grow. With the advent of nearly $130,000,000 of the yellow metal reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank.

The gold was estimated about $140,000,000 had been engaged for shipment here. Gold was coming from France, Belgium, India and other countries.

According to the annual compilation of the American Bankers Association, savings in 1934, the country increased $742,132,000.

At the year end, the total of $1,387,868,000. The total, however, was $1,387,868,000.

The weekly federal reserve plan showed an increase of $4,000,000 in bankers' loans for a total of $1,387,868,000.

Stalin's Order to U. S. Communists
"The American Communist Party must be improved and Bolshevized. For that end we must work in order to forge real revolutionary cadres and a real revolutionary leadership of the proletariat, capable of leading the many millions of the American working class toward the revolutionary class struggles."
Stalin, in address May 6, 1929.

'Faithful Unto Death'

Let Congress Provide for Slain Federal Men's Dependents

THERE is no nobler sacrifice than that of one's life in the performance of high duty. It is heroism of the purest type, and stirs the deepest as well as the finest feelings of mankind. With such feelings—with pride, gratitude and profound admiration—the people of the United States are glorying in the example of Federal Agents Herman E. Hollis and Samuel P. Cowley.

Pursuing relentlessly a murderous outlaw, determined to bring his career of killing and law defiance to a close, these faithful officers of the law—true Americans—finally overtook him, cornered him, shot at him, killed him, as he deserved to be killed, and laid down their lives on the altar of patriotism and duty.

THE names of these faithful men must never be forgotten. The memory of their zeal, fidelity and courage must be treasured as a national possession.

The debt we owe them must be discharged—in the only way and measure that we can ever acknowledge so unrequited a debt—by prompt and generous provision for the care and maintenance of their families and dependents.

Let Congress see to this! The people demand it and expect it!

Squaring a Square

Copley Plan Is Advanced

For centuries students of mathematics have been puzzled over squaring a circle. It remained for the Boston Art Commission to advance plans for squaring a couple of triangles.

The two triangles which the Art Commission would square constitute what is known as Copley square in Boston's Back Bay.

Under the plan, Trinity place would be widened and extended to Boylston street. The diagonal street across the square would be eliminated.

St. James avenue would be widened to the width of Boylston street.

World-famous artists and architects have already contributed their work to providing beauty in Copley square.

Now it is proposed to make the square itself more beautiful. And safer for foot and auto traffic.

The authorities appear agreed that the plan is good and feasible.

A public hearing should be held to bring out defects or possible betterments in the plan, if any.

Lights for Christmas

They'll Soon Be Turned On

Because of the improvement in general conditions and sentiment over that prevailing a year ago, the Christmas spirit promises to be stronger this year.

A year ago, for example, the merchants of Hyanis, important Cape Cod center, felt too blue to "light up."

This year arches with many-colored lights will decorate the main thoroughfare of Hyanis, beginning December 15. In Haden the Christmas illumination starts December 10.

Progressive Quincy has already "lighted up" a giant Christmas tree.

The merchants of more towns and cities should copy. It helps business.

Savings Banks Gain

Rise Displayed Over Year Ago

For the first time since 1920 savings in United States banks show an increase over the preceding year.

When economic conditions permit the naturally thrifty instincts of Americans to pile up savings the most uninitiated economist rightly may say conditions are better.

Here in New England this latest savings report of the American Bankers Association shows conditions compared favorably with the rest of the country.

It is a happy anomaly. One that means the days of blackness and anguish are past. For the savings of the people in turn finance the business expansion enabling others to get jobs and commence saving.

Benefactress in Turn

Widow's Mite Grows to Widow's Might

In Camden, N. J., was a widow with six children. Her only "asset" was the very doubtful one of a suit for damages based upon her husband's death or injury.

The destitute family received $1647.40 from the State Bureau of Pensions.

Then came the sudden payment of a $25,000 judgment in settlement of the lawsuit.

And the first thing the widow did was to return to the State what she had received.

"I am so grateful for what the State did," she explained, "that I want to give this money back so some other widow may benefit by it."

Necessarily, we hear much these days about relief "chiselers."

The Camden incident tells a new side of the story.

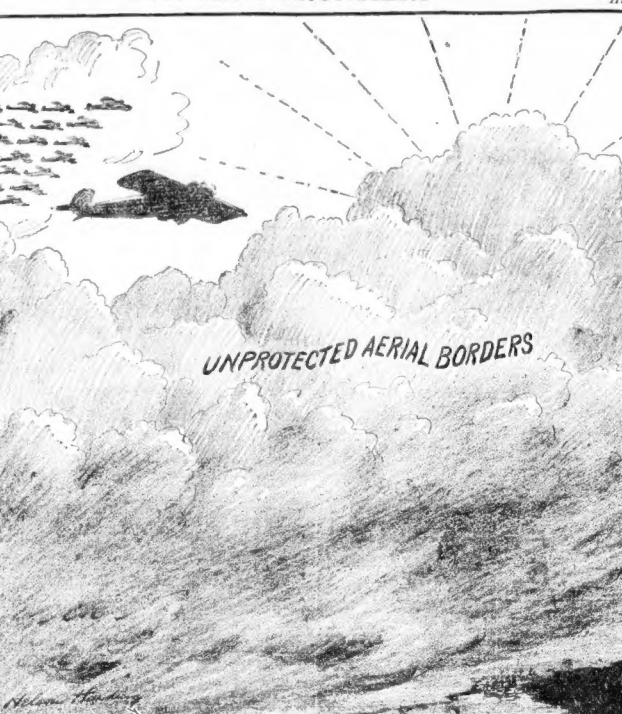

"As many as received Him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God."—St. John 1, 12.

OUR TRUE FRONTIERS

Not upon the nation's coastlines,
The Atlantic and Pacific;
Not upon the northern border
Nor upon the southern boundary
Lie the frontiers of our country.
They are in the open, boundless
And unguarded air above us.
There, all recent flights should teach us,
Lies the danger of invasion.
Let us show we know our lesson
By the building of an air fleet
Ample to protect our country.

Nicaragua Canal Needed

(Construction of Nicaragua Canal would be a mighty aid to the national defense, a great advantage to American shipping and a powerful public works project to put thousands of men to work, as recently stated editorially in the Boston Evening American. Army engineers who already have surveyed the route reported to Congress that it was entirely practical and feasible. In the following article, the defense angle of the canal is outlined.)

Washington, Dec. 1 (VS) —"A divided defense has some inherent weaknesses, but two canals means that all our eggs will not be in one basket."

That statement is taken from a private report in War Department files, made by a military expert who headed investigation of proposals that this nation could build a canal across Nicaragua joining the Caribbean Sea and the Pacific Ocean.

Such a canal, put forward as a public works project, costing $72,000,000, would shorten by three days the movement of American battle fleets from one coast to the other, pay for itself in time through tolls, relieve unemployment and provide greater national defense.

It provided that the canal across Nicaragua, connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, was adopted by the United States Senate, Jan. 21, 1899.

HUMAN SIDE OF THE NEWS

"Abundance No Fault"

By Edwin C. Hill

GLOVE TROTTER OF THE EAST TROTONE NEWS

Stepping out of the 333 interplanetary rocket, and taking a look around, the Man from Mars finds earth-being everywhere—building, dams and canals, draining swamps, diverting and impounding streams, reclaiming deserts, and doing a general all-around job of face-lifting on old Mother Earth.

"Why?" the visitor asks. "We want more food and farms and machines and housing and power and security," his guide answers.

"I thought you were in trouble because you had too much for consuming."

"That's the point. We've got to equip and condition a lot of everything."

ABUNDANCE NO FAULT. Possibly the Man from Mars murmurs that, from where he sat, the earth always did look like a squirrel's nest, being a scoured traveler, he may have picked up that old French proverb, "Abundance is no fault."

There is a lot of earth here in that, and it is this instinctive knowledge which always has driven man to individual or co-operative effort, regardless of what "for and against" were telling him.

Ed St. Vincent Millay, in her new book, has a little poem about the farmer, who, driving his cow to pasture, passes an anti-birding his little "aphid" milk cows.

They don't stop to pass the time of day, or chat about the A.A. imitation of acreage. Each is impelled by something quite apart from new or old economics.

BUILDING OF DAMS. Currently, the New York Power Authority report in Washington from pages the St. Lawrence River project, ditched in the last Congress, but vigorously revived, and quite possibly due for adoption this time.

land with fertility, opening homes and farms for multitudes—representing, altogether, fourteen years' employment for thirteen thousand men.

And, the great back of its old enemy, the Zulu Zulu.

In Italy, iron-fisted Mussolini's contemptuous of the "dole for farmers" of the old Italy, swings all the might of rearmament against Italy against the old, litter and decay of the age.

He drains that most illustrious of the old, building mills and cottons and factories. He dredges the Tiber.

Down in our Tennessee Valley, the great Norris dam is a breathtaking reminder of the boldness of collective enterprise.

Russia, with its great Dnieper dam, and its linked construction of reservoirs and flood dykes, is salvaging the country with electric light and power.

WRITES ABOUT
Our Soapbox Orators

A soapbox orator is a perfectly harmless little fellow. A soapbox is an idea is apt to upset an empire. This bit of wisdom is as old as time.
